

Harp Song from a Silent Wood

Original title: Toner fra en stille skog
 Publisher: Vigmostad & Bjørke, 2019
 Genre: Commercial fiction
 Pages: 407 pages
 English sample available

Foreign rights

Danish: Storytel, audiobook
 German: Ullstein List
 Swedish: Boknøje AB, hardback
 Swedish: Storyside, audiobook

Laila Brenden

Vigmostad&Bjørke//Eigil Korsager

Harp Song from a Silent Wood

Harp Song from a Silent Wood is a story of love and betrayal chronicling woman's journey from deep within the Norwegian woods to the great concert halls of Europe.

Ane Solingen, an independent woman with captivating eyes, has a unique inner strength. Is this why the people of the village dislike her? She has found happiness with her boyfriend Hans, and they live in harmony with nature on a small homestead in the forest. One day Hans doesn't come home. Her life unravels when she finds him dead in the woods. Some weeks after, Ane realises pregnant and has no choice but to seek help from the villagers. To her surprise, they show her kindness, and she receives a gift that will change her life forever.

When tragedy strikes again, Ane is better prepared and ready to sacrifice everything for the most important person in her life. Ane knows what to do, but not that it will change her life dramatically.

The novel is the first of three volumes of a historical saga of commercial women's fiction, set at the turn of the nineteenth century.

Laila Brenden

Laila Brenden is a Norwegian author of more than 80 historical romance novels. Her book series Hannah and Mountain Roses have sold in excess of a million copies in Norway, and are published in Sweden and Poland. Brenden has also written several non-fiction books for children and adults.